Bijou-"The Rosary." Over Night."

The experience of Philip II. Bartholomae, the young author of "Over Night." which will be seen at the Academy Christmas, matinee and night, is rather unique in the history of playwriting. Not only is "Over Night" Mr. Bartholomae's first play, but it was accepted by the first manager by whom it was read, and proved an instantaneous success on the night of its initial production. Young Bartholomae was just out of school, a graduate of the Remssleer Polytechnic institute, at Troy, N. Y., when he went to work for the situte, at Troy, N. Young Burtholomae was just out of school, a graduate of the Rensselaer Polytechnic institute, at Troy, N. Y., when he went to work for the American Bridge Company. His nature rebelled at the exacting work over blue prints and contract estimates, and as he had a natural predeliction for the theatre, he quite naturally started to write a play.

Big Play at Bijou.

An exceptionally brilliant cast surrounds Miss Eugenie Blair in the remarkable production of "The Test," which comes to the Bijou Theatre for the Christmas week attraction. Conditions of to-day are not only treated in this play by the author, Jules E. Goodman, but they are woven into four acts of absorbing dialogue, genuine heart interest and action, phases of modern life that appeal to men and women in every walk. This play promises to be one of the most interesting to be seen at the Bijou this season.
